After Babel

Aspects of Language and Translation

George Steiner

This is the first attempt since the eighteenth century at a systematic investigation of the phenomenology and processes of translation, inside language and between languages. It is a demanding book which draws on linguistics and psychology, on poetics and philosophy. '... the ambitiousness of his book which tries to cover the whole field of linguistics inquiry with an extraordinary speculative zest and a wealth of learning that few people could equal.' The Listener £8

Wilfred Owen

Jon Stallworthy

'There are obvious difficulties about writing the biography of a man who lived only 25 years ... Jon Stallworthy surmounts them all brilliantly in a biography which is unlikely to be bettered.' The Times

As well as retracing Owen's life up to his death a few days before the armistice, this book is a poet's illuminating inquiry into the operations of the poet's mind. £6.75 Published jointly with Chatto & Windus

The Soul of Wit

A Study of John Donne

Murray Roston

The Soul of Wit demonstrates the unity of experience in Donne's poetry, and suggests that despite all surface differences there exists an underlying affinity between the libertine or amatory poems and the devotional writings. The unifying impulse is traced to Donne's dissatisfaction with certain Renaissance modes of thought and his attempt to resist or negate them. Illustrated £5

A Natural Passion

A Study of the Novels of Samuel Richardson

Margaret Anne Doody

This book reveals the diversity of Richardson's sources and his originality in combining very disparate elements. Although the book deals with all the novels, it concentrates on Clarissa and Sir Charles Grandison, paying particular attention to the question of why Clarissa, the only tragic novel of the period, should have a woman for a central character, and the vitality and variety of his heroines.
