

Notes on Contributors

KATERYNA OLIJNYK ARTHUR is Chair of the English and Comparative Literature Programme at Murdoch University, Western Australia. She has co-edited (with James Acheson) Beckett's Later Fiction and Drama: Texts for Company (Macmillan, 1987) and (with Sneja Gunew) Striking Chords: Multicultural Literary Criticism, forthcoming in 1991. She has published widely in the field of postcolonial writing.

HAROLD FARMER taught English at the University of Zimbabwe. His poems have appeared in many publications, including The Malahat Review, PRISM International, and The Penguin Book of Southern African Verse. His collection of poems Absence of Elephants is to be published by College Press, Harare.

D. C. R. A. GOONETILLEKE is Professor of English at the University of Kelaniya, Sri Lanka. His books include Developing Countries in British Fiction (Macmillan, 1977), Images of the Raj: South Asia in the Literature of Empire (Macmillan, 1988), and Joseph Conrad: Beyond Culture and Background, which is to be published by Macmillan in 1990.

ROBERT HILLES teaches at the Devry Institute of Technology, Calgary. His books of poetry include Look the Lovely Animal Speaks, The Surprise Element, An Angel in the Works, and Outlasting the Landscape.

INGE ISRAEL has published extensively in such journals as PRISM International and Wascana Review and has had her short stories broadcast on the BBC, London, and the CBC, Canada. Her books of poetry include Réflexions and Aux Quatres Terres. She won a special translation award in the 1985 PRISM poetry contest.

WAYNE KEON is an Ojibway from Elliot Lake, Ontario. He has published extensively in such magazines as The Malahat Review, PRISM International, Lines Review (Scotland), and Canadian Literature and in such anthologies as First People, First Voices, Many Voices, and Thunderbirds of the Ottawa.

JOHN LEBLANC recently completed his Ph.D. degree at the University of Calgary on the Caribbean poet and dramatist, Derek Walcott. He teaches at the University of British Columbia. His current work is in the area of International English literature and postcolonial literary theory.

PATRICIA MERIVALE is Professor of English and Comparative Literature at the University of British Columbia. She is the author of Pan the Goat-God: His Myth in Modern Times (Harvard UP) and numerous articles on comparative topics, published in such journals as PMLA, Comparative Literature, and Canadian Literature. She is currently working on narrative structures in the modern artist-parable.

ODE S. OGEDE teaches courses on British poetry and African literature at Ahmadu Bello University, Nigeria. He is the current editor of Saiwa and has published many poems and articles. His recent work on Kwei Armah will be published in Kunapipi and Matafu.

JAMES B. SCOTT is a graduate of the Universities of British Columbia and Toronto and currently teaches English at Red Deer College, Alberta.

FAN SHEN, a shepherd during the Cultural Revolution, learned English by listening to the BBC and Voice of America. He has published three translated books and numerous articles in Chinese and English. He is currently completing his Ph.D. in English at Marquette University.

CRAIG TAPPING has taught postcolonial literatures in Ireland, Nigeria, and British Columbia. He is one of the organizers of the 1990 MLA plenary forum, "Decolonizing Theory." He now teaches at Malaspina College.

NANCY G. WESTERFIELD resides in Nebraska. Recent verse and articles have appeared in ARIEL, The Christian Century, and The Living Church.

LAURIE ANNE WHITT has previously published in various magazines including ARIEL, PRISM International, Quarry, and The Malahat Review.

GARY WIHL is Associate Professor of English at McGill University. He is the author of Ruskin and the Rhetoric of Infallibility (Yale, 1985) and co-editor of Literature and Ethics (McGill-Queen's, 1988). He recently completed Critical Agency and the Language of Theory (forthcoming).

FRANCES WILSON lives in Hertfordshire, England. She has published stories and poems in many publications. Her drawings have appeared in poetry magazines and she recently illustrated a children's book by Adèle Geras.

KEITH WILSON teaches at the University of Ottawa. His work in nineteenth- and twentieth-century British literature has appeared in a wide range of books and journals. He has just completed a study of Thomas Hardy and the stage.